2. ACTION SUMMARY

More than eight months after the start of the crisis in Ethiopia's Tigray region, the security situation in the area remains volatile, with continued reports of active hostilities, abuses against civilians, forced displacement, abductions and sexual and gender-based violence, allegedly perpetrated by various parties to the conflict. Over 5 million people are estimated to require emergency assistance, close to 2 million people to be displaced internally, and 900,000 civilians are facing famine. The availability of assistance and relief for the population is currently severely curtailed by limited humanitarian access, as well as a lack of resources and the capacity of existing structures. Independent assessment and monitoring are also hampered by a lack of access. The Government of Ethiopia declared a unilateral cease fire effective by 28 June 2021, announcing that the current challenge in the region needs to be addressed expeditiously, given the risk of a humanitarian crisis. The impact of violence and trauma on the population is significant, often leading to a sentiment of despair, the breaking up of the social fabric, fuelling further resentment and deepening divisions. As ethnic fragmentation and conflict are also increasing in other regions of Ethiopia, peace education is a necessary investment in the country's future, particularly at a time when messages of hatred and intolerance dominate the narrative. This action will aim to support relief and healing for conflict affected communities in Tigray and strengthen resilience as a first step for conflict prevention, reconciliation, and social cohesion in Ethiopia. The action will aim to restore productive capacity within affected communities, assist victims of sexual and gender-based violence and provide mental health and psychological support for those impacted by the conflict in Tigray. The action will also promote peace education for children and youth to support peaceful coexistence and gender equality values.

3. BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE

3.1 BACKGROUND

More than eight months into the conflict in Tigray, the security situation in the region remains volatile with ongoing active hostilities. There are continued reports of human rights violations and violations of international humanitarian law in Tigray, including the killing of civilians, the destruction of civilian infrastructure, sexual and gender-based violence and forced displacement. Humanitarian access remains limited and constrained. Estimates regarding the level of food insecurity and famine vary. The analysis of the Integrated Food Security Phase Classification issued in June 2021 found that over 350,000 people are facing famine conditions.<sup>1</sup> Separate humanitarian needs assessments estimate that as many as 900,000 people could soon be facing famine-like conditions. Only very limited supplies of seeds are available and farms, warehouses, agricultural inputs and veterinary clinic services have been damaged or looted. The purchasing power of the civilian population in the region has significantly dropped due to the unavailability of cash, nonpayment of salaries and loss of livelihood. Access to water, hygiene and sanitation services are largely disrupted due to a lack of electricity, fuel, looting or destruction – a situation which is particularly acute in areas with high numbers of internally displaced persons.

In a joint statement, the European Union (EU) High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy/Vice-President of the European Commission Josep Borrell Fontelles, the EU Commissioner for Crisis Management Janez Lenarčič, the EU Commissioner for International Partnerships Jutta Urpilainen and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) Administrator Samantha Power, underlined the potential for this crisis to destabilise the broader Horn of Africa region and called on all parties to the conflict, as well as the international community, to act urgently.<sup>2</sup>

The impact of violence and trauma on the population is significant, often leading to a sentiment of despair, tears to the social fabric, fuelling of further resentment and deepening divisions. Sexual and gender-based violence is prevalent. The annual report of the United Nations (UN) Secretary General on conflict related sexual violence highlights the military operations in Tigray as a case of sexual violence used as a tactic of war, torture and terrorism.<sup>3</sup> As a result of the conflict, the majority of health facilities – the main entry points for survivors of gender and sexual based violence seeking help – are not functioning. In addition, insecure conditions for referral are preventing people from rural areas from seeking help at referral hospitals that have trained staff and access to medicines and supplies. The inability to receive lifesaving medical treatment and psychosocial care can have life-long physical, emotional, social, and economic consequences for survivors and their families. There is a need to support a comprehensive and multisectoral approach for survivors of gender-based violence and other traumatic events. This entails integrating mental and psychosocial support in the primary health-care system, to raise awareness at community level about mental health as well as psychosocial support needs and about available services and to support efforts to build community responses.

Ethnic fragmentation and conflict are also on the rise in other regions of Ethiopia and intolerance and hate speech are increasingly visible in the public narrative. Peace education seeks to change values, behaviours and attitudes and employ non-violent strategies for conflict transformation and conflict prevention. It can also play an important role in enhancing gender equality and challenging gender stereotypes and roles that are often reinforced by conflict and exacerbate violence towards women. Yet, while 60% of the population are under 25 years old, there are only limited peace education initiatives targeting children and youth in Ethiopia.

In response to this situation, the action will aim to support relief for and resilience of conflict affected communities in Tigray as well as peace education in Ethiopia.

3.2 RATIONALE FOR CRISIS RESPONSE ACTIONS UNDER THE RAPID RESPONSE PILLAR OF THE NEIGHBOURHOOD, DEVELOPMENT AND INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION INSTRUMENT

The ongoing conflict in Tigray, with reports of conflict-induced famine, serious allegations of sexual and gender-based violence, conflict-induced trauma and an increase in ethnic fragmentation and conflicts also in other regions of Ethiopia, constitutes an exceptional and unforeseen situation in the sense of Article 4(4) of the NDICI Regulation. An adequate response cannot be provided under any other European Union Instrument due to the urgency with which the funds are required and due to available resources already being firmly committed.

Annex IV, paragraph 1, points (a), (b), (g), (l) and (m) of Regulation (EU) No 2021/947 specifically provides for the use of the NDICI rapid response pillar to support (a) the provision of technical and logistical assistance, for the efforts undertaken by international, regional and local organisations and by State and civil society actors in promoting confidence-building, mediation, dialogue and reconciliation, transitional justice, women’s and youth empowerment, in particular with regard to community tensions and protracted conflicts; (b) the implementation of UNSCRs on women, youth, peace and security; (g) measures necessary to start the rehabilitation and reconstruction of key infrastructure, housing, public buildings and economic assets, and essential productive capacity, as well as other measures for the re-starting of economic activity, the generation of employment and the establishment of the minimum conditions necessary for sustainable social development, (l) measures to ensure that the specific needs of women and children in crisis and conflict situations, including preventing their exposure to gender-based violence, are adequately met and (m) for the rehabilitation and reintegration of the victims of armed conflict, including measures to address the specific needs of women and children.

3.3 RISKS AND ASSUMPTIONS

Risks	High, medium, low	Mitigation

Access to the population in affected areas is restricted due to active hostilities, obstruction or administrative impediments.	High	Action to be implemented with a high degree of flexibility and adaptability to react to changes on the ground.
Security situation endangers staff safety.	High	Abide by security guidelines.
Resumption of farming activities puts the population at further risk and/or is not efficient.	High	Partners to ensure that adequate safeguards are in place and conditions are conducive to the resumption of farming activities and inputs are available in Tigray.
The COVID-19 pandemic affects implementation of the action.	Medium	The implementation of the action will follow national and international sanitary guidelines.

6.4 PERFORMANCE AND RESULTS MONITORING AND REPORTING

The day-to-day technical and financial monitoring of the implementation of this action will be a continuous process and part of the implementing partner's responsibilities. To this aim, the implementing partner shall establish a permanent internal, technical and financial monitoring system for the action and elaborate regular progress reports (not less than annual) and a final report. Every report shall provide an accurate account of implementation of the action, difficulties encountered, changes introduced, as well as the degree of achievement of its results (outputs and outcomes) as measured by corresponding indicators, using as reference the Logframe matrix. The report shall be laid out in such a way as to allow monitoring of the means envisaged and employed and of the budget details for the action. The final report, narrative and financial, will cover the entire period of the action implementation.

The Commission may undertake additional project monitoring visits both through its own staff and through independent consultants recruited directly by the Commission for independent monitoring reviews (or recruited by the responsible agent contracted by the Commission for implementing such reviews).

6.5 EVALUATION

This includes the allocation of over EUR 63 million to humanitarian projects in Ethiopia in 2020, including EUR 18.8 million for the Tigray crisis and its impact in other regions of Ethiopia, as well as EUR 6 million additional funding for the Ethiopian refugees in Sudan. This funding focuses on enhancing the emergency response capacity of humanitarian partners, with a focus on health, shelter and non-food items, nutrition and protection. The action will also complement the existing European Union Trust Fund (EUTF) project “Stability and socio-economic development for vulnerable and marginalised communities in the Tigray region of Ethiopia”, which has a peace-building and livelihoods component. Complementarity will be ensured through close coordination at the level of the EU Delegation and with relevant services. Through the EU Delegation in Ethiopia and the FPI Regional Team in Nairobi, coordination will also be ensured with EU Member States' representations in Ethiopia.
